singling out for emphasis certain physical qualities. In one of them he utilizes the artistic possibilities of the side view in a manner that suggests a Whistler composition. Portraits of Kipling, Macerlinck, Zangwill and Henry James are done in an aquatint effect, which stands apart from the soft blurs of diffused and broken light that mark the rest.

At the Ehrlich gallery the old masters of Spain are succeeded by members of the modern school. The transition is a little startling. Spanish art fell upon evil days after the disappearance of Goya. Fortuny, in his brilliant way, did something to revive its magic, but he was a portent by himself, capable not only of the glittering technique for which he is mainly remembered, but of a sober masterpiece like the "Portrait of a Lady," which hangs in the Metropolitan Museum. He is not included in the Ehrlich show. The earliest figure of any consequence in that is the able but not at all inspired Eugenio Lucas. The character of the display is set by men like Fradilla and Domingo, which is to say that it is a long way after Valasquez. Your modern Spaniard is often deft, unimaginably deft, but not otherwise enthralling. There are several examples of Sorolla on the walls, examples, fortunately, of his brief, summary, improving mood. The single Zuloaga is a strange piece, an early canvas in which he smacks of the Salon and does nothing even remotely to hint at the style he ultimately beat out for himself.

Some of the exhibitions at the Touchstone gallery have been of a very modest order indeed, so that it is gratifying to note an improvement. The portrait drawings by Ruth Thomas, which are now shown, are skillfully executed and have a winning spirit, a delicate quality. Mr. John G. Lillo is rather crude in his paintings, but distinctly clever in his black and whites, and there is a lively, amusing key developed in the studies of form by Mr. W. Rienecke. All three of these contributors rise above the status of the amateur. It is a good sign.

An exhibition of colored miniature medallion portraits in wax by Ethel Frances Munday, member of the Royal Society of Miniature Painters in London, is on display at the Brooklyn Museum. The work represents numerous sitters, well known in society and art circles. The wax portrait medallion is a type of art formerly popular in America and Europe during the eighteenth century.

At the Bruns galleries there is a memorial exhibition of the works of Albert Gaul, N. A., which include paintings of war subjects, landscapes and genres.

Drypoint etchings of the East Side by Margery A. Eyerson are displayed at the Butler galleries on Madison Avenue. Miss Eyerson, who is secretary of the Brooklyn Society of Etchers, has taken her subjects largely from child life in the New York Italian quarter.

Gossip of the Stage:
Glimpses Into Some Forthcoming Plays

Wollie Hart, Belle Murry and Ruth Thomas.

Norman Trevor's production of "An Ideal Husband" is to be given two performances, Sunday and Monday, April 3 and 4, for the benefit of the Endowment Fund of the Post-Graduate Hospital. Besides Mr. Trevor and Merle Maddern, who have the principal roles, the cast includes Eric Leighton, Ann Meredith, Sophie Wilds, Elizabeth Patterson, Mrs. Betty Ward and Richard Ranier.

Emmet Corrigan has the chief rôle in the latest Augustus Thomas play, "Nemesis," which will be presented by George M. Cohan at the Apollo Theatre, Atlantic City, to-morrow night. He is supported by a cast which includes Carlotta Monterey in the leading feminine part, Pedro de Cordoba, Eleanor Woodruff, John Craig, Marie Goff, Roland Bottomley, Ethel Winthrop, Robert Cummings, Jenny Dickerson, Frank M. Readick, Charles P. Bates, Howard Nugent, Ezra Walck, John M. Troughton and Jerry Hart. Beyond the fact that the new piece is a modern American drama no hint as to the nature of the offering has been divulged.

"The Two Virtues," by Alfred Sutro, will be read by Elizabeth Pooler Dice, at the Waldorf-Astoria, to-morrow afternoon, under the auspices of the Leland Powers Club. The purpose of this club, whose members are the alumnae of the Leland Powers School of Expression, is to further a more general appreciation of play reading.

Margaret Anglin's production of Euripides' "Iphigenia in Aulis" at the Manhattan Opera House on April 4 will be an interpretation of the spirit of the great tragedian rather than of the archaic form of the play.

Miss Anglin has taken into account all there is on record concerning the method of production thirty centuries ago. For her primary authority she has looked to the "Iphigenia" itself. Combining the potency of the original Greek with the free interpretative range of the modern stage insures the finest artistic achievement.

Mrs. Norris Joins Goldwyn Staff
Kathleen Norris has just signed a contract to write original scenarios for the Goldwyn company. A number of Mrs. Norris's stories have been made into motion pictures and have proved popular, but she has never written directly for the screen. It was in 1910 that she first began writing short stories. Her first novel, "Mother," was one of the best sellers of its period.

An Easter Blouse Sale—$3.95
Newest Over-Blouse and Tie-On Models of Georgette Crepe and Mignonette

FASHION DECREES that the smart youthful Blouse that ties in the back, or is of the over-blouse model, shall be the favored Blouse for spring wear, and this extraordinarily low price is possible because of a special purchase of the best styles obtainable. Beautiful materials, exquisitely embroidered or braided, with the correct sleeve length and neck style and in a gorgeous array of the latest Parisian colors and color combinations.

Three Models Are Illustrated
Honeydew Georgette
The first figure is of Georgette crepe in a new shade of honeydew. It is richly embroidered, with three-quarter sleeves ending in a novel pointed cuff, an ultra-smart style and extremely popular.
Mignonette Overblouse
The central figure is an alluring mignonette in a pale maize shade with the new flat collar of rich braid, tiny buttons and the bottom finished with braiding. The sort of Blouse one likes to wear on any occasion!
Georgette Blouse Embroidered
The third Blouse shows the beauty of rich embroidery and combinations of colorings. It is fashioned of Georgette, with short, full sleeves, bell shaped, and the round neck is outlined with embroidered motifs. An exceptionally youthful model!

Other equally lovely Blouses are included in this remarkable sale, copies of the higher-priced models, silk and bead embroidered. The mignonette Blouses are many of them chenille embroidered in large floral design outlined with gold and silver thread. The heavy braid trimming is an attractive feature of the Overblouse styles.

Sale of Frocks, $37.50
For Women and Misses
Poirot Twills,
Canton Crepe,
Taffetas, Satins

LINES that accentuate youthful slenderness, embroideries to adorn long panel effects, and the narrowest of string belts, all make these frocks the slenderizing type.

The three illustrated show the great variety of the assortment. Two are fashioned of blue tricotine over satin skirts. They show the vogue for combining embroidery and beads. One is made in long panel effects that are lined with jade green crepe de chine.

There is the new twice-around belt and short sleeves.

The model of brown tricotine is made over a satin skirt, girdled with a heavy band which ends in two rich tassels and shows a tiny vest of embroidered batiste and rich bandings of beads and silk embroidery.

A navy blue twill has long heavily embroidered and braided panels with cross-over belt, and the panels are embroidered and beaded.

Other models in taffeta, satins, Canton Crepes and all exquisitely embroidered. Colors are navy, brown, gray and black. Women's and misses' sizes. Fifth Floor.
